

DukeMedicine

SAVE THE DATES

24th Annual Joseph and Kathleen Bryan Alzheimer Disease Research Center Conference Alzheimer's 2010: Pathways to Discovery, Treatment, and Prevention

February 11-12, 2010

8:30 AM – 4:30 PM

(Ends at 3:00 PM on Friday)

Enrollment Limited to 300

Continuing Education Credits Available

Sheraton Imperial Hotel and Conference Center
4700 Emperor Boulevard
Research Triangle Park, NC 27703

The twenty-fourth annual conference of the Joseph and Kathleen Bryan Alzheimer's Disease Research Center (Bryan ADRC) will emphasize new science and discoveries in Alzheimer's disease and their implications for both current practice and for translation into community approaches most likely to have an immediate, positive impact on public health. The focus is on research defining the earliest signs of AD and related conditions and the potential of these findings to inform future prevention strategies and drug discovery.

This conference is designed specifically for families affected by Alzheimer's disease and related disorders, direct care staff, health care professionals and administrators, aging service professionals, and clinician-scientists. Afternoon clinical practice and experiential workshops target a diverse community and multidisciplinary audience.

- $100 for two-day Registration fee; $60 for one day (Registration closes January 21).
- Continental breakfasts and lunches provided with free parking available.

Look for more information soon at <http://edservices.mc.duke.edu/index.htm>
Or call 800-646-2028 for more information.